

RV camping at C.O.R.E?

Posted by farmerTodd - 10 Mar 2014 11:35

I have been looking for information on RV camping for the upcoming Rallycross race at CORE but didn't see any on their website.

Does anyone know what the typical setup is for the RallyCross events and/or where people stay the night?

It's my first race so am noobing here so i am less noob there:)

Thx

Camping is usually ok, but this early in the Spring.... I've done that and been quite cold. You also might want to contact Carl. He's the man that operates CORE and has the final say on the matter.

Also, there's not much traffic here due to webmaster issues. You might want to also check out our group's facebook page.

See you out there Saturday for the School and Sunday for the first event of 2014!

Hey Farmer,

Usually the more popular questions are posted under the event schedule page and "First Timers guide" which is located under the "Getting started link above.

As Eric was saying camping is not allowed at CORE during the early spring months and is not allowed at all at the Truck Driving school. PPIR is sometimes okay with it on a event to event basis.

Feel free to ask as many other questions that you might have. While it is true the Forums don't see as much traffic, but that usually because we don't have a easily accessible phone app and everyone's other friends aren't on here posting funny cat videos. However there's plenty of us who are more then willing to help you become addicted to Heroin, I mean RallyCross, so don't hesitate to ask.
